PROSPECTS FOR PEACE BRIGHTER

Situation is Exceedingly Delicate-Meyer Refuses to Talk.

(By Associated Press.)
ST. PETERSBURG, June 7.—With Amlassador Meyer's delivery to the Emperor yesterday afternoon of President Rooseveit's message, tendering his good offices, the prospect of the President's efforts to bring the beligerents together in peace negotiations is believed to be distinctly bright. It is equally evident that the situation is an exceedingly delicate one. Ambassador Meyer, when seen by the Associated Press to-night, absolutely declined to say a word regarding his visit to Tsarskoe-Selo, the mission with which he is charged, or the Emperor's response. The center of interest is again transferred to Washington. Count Cassini has doubtless received instructions from the Emperor. However, it will probably require some little time to determine finally whether success shall crown the President's efforts to end the war. Russian Press Resentful. Russian Press Resentful.

the President's efforts to end the war.

Russian Press Resentful.

The Russian press, notably the Novoe Vremya and the Russ, the latter frequently reflecting the views of the foreign office, displays a great deal of resentment against the United States for enforcing the twenty-four-hour rule in the case of the three Russians at Manila.

The Russ quotes the American neutrality regulations and contends that President Roosevelt, in applying the principle that only injuries received during a storm and not in battle can be repaired in American ports, not only narrows the American regulations, but infringes recognized principles of international law, This paper claims it has official warrant for the statement that representations have been made to Washington on the subject.

The Novoe Vremya is exceedingly sarcastic. After a slap at Great Britain for the alleged manner in which her vessels dogged the Russian fleet from the time it left Cronstant and for trying to force all the powers to accept her interpretation of the rules of neutrality, the Novoe Vremya declares that President Roosevelt, whom it refers to as "Mr. Roosevelt askes full advantage of the fact that Russia is helpless and powerless to do more than protest. The Japanese minister is reported to have hastened to express his gratifude to America for this act of impartiality, which is partial to Japan. We trust Mr. Roosevelt is satisfied with his success."

Old Dominion Steamship Com pany Begins.

During a Severe Storm She Was Thrown and Injured.

The United States Circuit Court yester day began the trial of a case of great interest, and one that promises to be vigorourly contested. It is the ten thousand dollar damage suit instituted by Miss Nannie Morgan, of Norfolk, against the Old Dominion Steamship Company, for injuries sustained by her as a passenger on the company's steamer Princess Anne, while en route from New York to Norfolk. The plaintiff alleges that the injuries from which she has suffered and still suffers were due to the negligence and failure of the company to provide proper berths and adequate protection to passengers traveling in its state rooms. While a passenger on the Princess Anne during a violent storm, she alleges that through defective construction of the boat water poured into the state room, subjecting her to injury to health, and that having no means of retaining her place in the borth, she was thrown violently to the floor of the state room and sustained serious and permanent injuries, in consideration of which she asks $10,000 from the corporation.

Miss Morgan is a young and attractive lady. She was accompanied in the court room by several other young ladies, a somewhat unusual spectacle in this court. Miss Morgan was represented by McGuire and Reily as attorneys, while White, Tunstall and Willicox, of Norfolix, appeared for the defendant. An unusually fine jury had been secured for the trial, including several well known Richmond elizens. that the injuries from which she has suf-

In Session All Day.

The court sat all day yesterday taking testimony in the case. The evidence for the plaintiff was concluded and that for the defendant begun and almost concluded. The star witness of the day was the plaintiff herself, who was subjected to a trying ordeal in the long examination and cross-examination to which she was subjected. She made an excellent witness, answoring all the questions fired at her by the opposing atteracys with coolness and clearness, yet modestly and quietly, without ever becoming ruffled or confused by the expert quentioners. Miss Morgan told the story of her stormy and harrowing voyage graphically, and In Session All Day. and harrowing voyage graphically, and from hor story it appears that she suf-fered great hardship.

from her story it appears that she suffered great hardship.

An expert on steamboat construction was put on the stand by the defendant to establish the fact that the Princess Anne is constructed like other steamers, 'and that it was through no fault of construction that the accident occurred. Mr. Mc-Guire and Mr. White, for the plaintiff and defendant, respectively, had several little tiffs over-the admissibility of certain lines of questioning by Mr. White, who asked several questions which the court ruled to be open to the objection that they were leading questions.

The defense of the company is that the accident of which Miss Morgan was the victim was one to which any traveler is liable in such a hurricane, and that it was due to no defect in the construction of the steamer. The plaintiff's counsel are endeavoring to establish the fact that the berth had no side rail by which its occupant could hold on while the vessel was rolling and pitching in the gala, and that she could not have prevented being thrown from the berth and increby sustaining the scrious injury out of which the sight and the signment will be had. It is probable that a verdict may be reached to-day, at which time the rigument will be had. It is probable that a verdict may

Recent Events.

Recent Events.

After the fall of Port Arthur the interest in the war situation shifted to the North, where Kuropatkin was slowly retiring before the advance of the invincible Oyama. The latter, reinforced now by Nogl and his veterans from the South, passed ever closer and closer until the battle of Mukden, the most gigantle struggle of the war, was fought. The Russian armies suffered disastrous defeat. Nearly a million men were engaged in the battle on both sides. The Russians lost 100,000 in kilked and wounded, and the Japanese 60,000. This is recent history, still fresh in the public mind. Kuropatkin was superseded by Linevitch, who, on Tuesday, advanced that he was almost to begin an advance.

Details of the great naval battle in the Straits of Korea are still appearing in the press and the story need not be retold here. The Czar's great Baltic fleet was annihilated and fit one blow the Russian sea power reduced to almost nothing. This defeat, more than anything clas, has served to turn the tide toward peace.
